HONOLULU, April 21, 1896.

Mr. C. W. MACFARLANE:—It affords me pleasure to recommend, to any one whose hair is falling out, the use of DR. POTTIE'S HAIR OIL. My hair was coming out at such a rate as led me to believe that I would soon become bald. After using the oil for five weeks this ceased entirely; none whatever is now falling out. I consider it the best and only worthy remedy for this trouble. I so recommend it as a stimulant to new growth.

Yours truly,
J. B. DANIELS.

A SUGGESTION TO ARBITRATE.

It Is Wrong to Fight in This Enlightened Age.

The little man with straw colored hair wagged his head indignantly and spluttered incoherent epithets, while the six footer stood off and watched him with an expression of mingled curiosity and worryment.

"I don't know that I exactly understand what you're saying," the big man remarked slowly. "But I guess I have a pretty good idea of the sentiment. Still we might as well get together and talk it over so's to have everything straight and plain. You said that I had not done half the fighting in the war that I claimed to have done, and I reported that you were so scared you didn't do any."

"Yes, sir; you did. And what's more, you reiterated it. And, not satisfied with that, you said it over."

"And thereupon you called me a liar."

"Yes, sir. And I am sorry, sir, that the company into which I had fallen and the stress of the circumstances betrayed me into the use of a word which should not be in any gentleman's vocabulary. But it's the only one which fits the subject."

"Let's don't bother about that. We're both in the same boat on that trip anyhow. You will remember that I gave way to my instinctive love of repartee and replied that you were another."

"You did exactly that."

"And then you wanted to fight."

"I haven't gotten over wanting to either."

"Still, even if we were to fight, the dispute as to the facts in the case would remain unsettled."

"A man is generally willing to give in when he has been licked," was the dogged answer.

"But it wouldn't be an even thing. I could take you with one hand like a whip cracker and snap the pegs out of your shoes."

The little man looked him over and, quite undaunted, replied:

"You've got a good chance to try."

"I don't want to do it. I dislike to leave unsettled this question of which of us is a mendacious blot on the continent which George Washington once inhabited. All you want, of course, is to have it decided which of us is a liar and which is not."

"That's all that it seems reasonable to expect."

"Suppose, then, that we go ahead and determine the thing in a sportsmanlike fashion. Here's a cent. I'll flip it up. Which'll you take, heads or tails?"

"Heads."

"All right. If it comes up heads I'm a liar, and if it comes up tails you're a liar."

But the little man with straw colored hair said it seemed a good deal like foolishness for grown men to behave in that way, and he guessed they'd better shake hands and call the whole affair off.—Detroit Free Press.

Uncertainties and a Certainty.

The attention of the public is now fully occupied and diverted in the consideration and discussion of several important current and prospective happenings. Annexation, as yet insecure, Reciprocity threatened; the coming of the Naniwa, and her mission after arrival; the outcome of the war between Greece and Turkey and, whether or no, all Europe will eventually become involved; the settlement of the quarantine squabble—are all themes of much conjecture and uncertainty, and while opinions are freely offered, none can accurately foretell the outcome of any of these matters. Nevertheless, it is becoming more apparent, as each day passes, that Buffalo and Hoffbrau are the favorite brews, and it is gratifying that assurance is given that regular shipments of these wholesome and strengthening beverages can be depended upon, and that they will, as heretofore, be dispensed at the Royal, Pacific and Cosmopolitan Saloons, and that the interchangeable check system is an established fact.
